Claude Bourbon

<https://claudbourbon.org>

It's not easy to describe the almost endless mix of merging influences in this amazing string master's playing... He moves from a classical opening with almost courteous music across the continent to the blues of the Mississippi Delta, from the Balearic Islands to the Balkans, and then back to the United States. A Spanish blues evolve into Gypsy music, travels to Eastern Europe, with a splash of Paco de Lucia, then a touch of Delta tunes and more. Also influences from Richie Blackmore, Joaquin Rodrigo, JJ Cale and even J. S. Bach speaks for themselves. Claude Bourbon has impeccable timing and does things on six strings that are simply amazing.

The Exile Club

<https://linktr.ee/theexileclub>

The Exile Club is a five-piece Roots Band; fusing Rock, Soul, Blues and Country to form a distinctly British take on classic Americana. Five professional session musicians who've toured to all four corners of the globe, bound together by a serendipitous meeting at the crossroads of their own respective musical journeys. Their songwriting blends a cocktail of styles and sentiment into a melting pot that pays homage to the heroes of the past, whilst keeping their sights firmly fixed on a brave and bright future.
